1. The whole of the Supplies of every description, in each District, may be included in one Tender, at a present.
2. Or the supplies may be tendered in subdivisions, as below, by a separate Tender for each sub-division, viz.:—
1st Military Ration.

3. The Ration of Forage.
4. The Ration of Fuel and Light.
5. The Supplies for Hospitals.
6. The Supplies for Naval Purposes and Penal Settlements.
7. The Supplies for General Purposes.
3. Or the various articles comprising the several Rations referred to, as well as all those required for Hospitals and other purposes, may be tendered separately or singly, by weight and measure. The undersigned reserving to himself the power of accepting Tenders for supplying, by any of these modes which he may find most expedient.
12. Contractors shall have at all times on the post pointed out for their Stores by the Deputy Commissary-General, a supply of Provisions kept in reserve, in the care of a competent Agent, to whom reference may be had in the Contractor's absence, in default of which, the Commissariat Officer, or other duly authorised person, may purchase at his, the Contractor's expense, such articles as are not forthcoming; and in the event of repeated failures in this respect, together with other causes of dissatisfaction arising from the bad quality of the supplies as decided by Boards of Survey or arbitration, it shall be in the power of the undersigned or his successors in office to cancel the contract and enforce the penalties.
13. In the event of a difference of opinion between the Contractor and the party receiving the supplies, as to the quality, the case is to be decided according to the practice of the service, by a Board of Survey. But in country districts, where a Board of Survey cannot be conveniently assembled, the party objecting will name one person as Arbitrator, the Contractor an agent another, and these two will (previously to any Issue being made to their part) concur in naming a third as Umpire, who, in the event of the Arbitrators not agreeing in opinion, will be called upon for his decision, which shall be final.
14. The only question referred to the Board, or to the Arbitrators, will be, whether or not the article objected to be such as, by his contract, the Contractor is bound to deliver; and if the Board, Arbitrators, or Umpire, shall decide that the article is of the quality and conditions of the contract, it must be immediately replaced by the Contractor, failing which it will be purchased, and the expense charged to his account. In cases where the article is of a perishable nature, or from some other cause injury would be sustained, either by the parties to whom the rations are due, or to the contractor, by waiting for a Board of Survey, the Board of Survey, Commissariat Officer in charge of the party or parties for whom the rations are to be received, shall have power to reject such articles or articles as are obviously of inferior quality. In the present condition, it being distinctly understood that he will be responsible to the Government for so doing; and that the Contractor will have the right to appeal, although, in the mean time, he must take back the rejected articles, and replace them with others, failing which, it will be obtained by the Officer or party requiring it, and the expense charged to the Contractor.
14. It shall be in the power of either party to limit the duration of the Contract, by giving, in writing, a notice of three calendar months to the opposite party, and to end the contract at the expiration of that period. It being understood that such a notice can be given only from the first day of a month, and within the period for which the Contract is made, or agreed to be made; and not later than the 1st of August.
16. The Contractor shall prepare his own cash accounts, strictly according to the prescribed form; and shall receive payment for the production thereof, with the requisite vouchers, to a complete final, before the termination of the Contract. It being understood that such accounts shall be produced before the Commissariat Officer in charge of the Provision Branch, for examination and payment, at the end of every month, under the provisions of Article 15 of the Contract.
17. The Contractor shall be bound to furnish his accounts for provisions, &c., issued within 14 days of the expiration of each month, and the same so due must be drawn from the Commissariat chest at Sydney, within the succeeding month, otherwise the amount will be considered forfeited to the public.
18. The time of the supplies shall be included in the yearly amounts of the Tenders.
19. Persons wishing to tender are requested to apply either at this office or to the Commissariat Officers in charge of the several stations, who will furnish them with printed forms for the purpose, and communicate further particulars; and as security for strict fulfilment of the contracts, each tender has an instrument attached, marked B., which must be signed by two competent securities, and properly witnessed, who shall bind themselves under the fixed penalties as laid down in Article 20, that all the conditions and stipulations of the contract shall be well and duly fulfilled, should the tender be accepted. No tender will be attended to unless made in the above direction.
20. The amounts of the bonds required in the several Districts are as follows; if contracted for collectively, viz.:—Sydney, £3000; Parramatta, £1000; Penrith, £1000; Hartley, £800; Newcastle, £800; Moreton Bay, £800; Port Phillip, £600.
21. The conversant and bonds must be executed on or before the 1st March next, otherwise the penalties will be enforced.
22. Tenders in duplicate are to be sealed in a separate envelope, addressed to the undersigned, marked "Supplies for 1849," and no tender made in consequence of this advertisement shall be withdrawn or altered, but notice of those accepted shall be given within eight days of the time of opening.
23. Fine or fine of bread to be given for the Military Ration, when required, in the proportion of 14 2-7th ozs. of the former, for 16 ozs. of the latter.
24. The Contractor for the District of Sydney will be bound to furnish the rations and articles particularised under the head of Provisions, No. 1 in 11, not only for the purposes specified, but also for any other purposes of the Military, Naval, Special, and Convict Services, should there be occasion for the same.

 A detailed list of the whole of the Lots is in course of preparation, and will be submitted to the public before the tickets are issued. 691

A COMMITTEE of the friends and political supporters of W. C. Wentworth, Esq., entertaining a deep sense of his continued public services during the last twenty-five years, and being desirous of obtaining for the colony the full benefit of his talents, in his present position as one of the members for Sydney, have suggested that particular use be made of the capacity of relieving himself from the large demands upon his time and attention occasioned by his very extensive public services. It being impossible in the present state of the money market to realise by ordinary means, on the large scale that will be necessary for the accomplishment of this object, except at a ruinous sacrifice; the Committee have undertaken, with Mr. Wentworth's consent, and that of his co-proprietors, to arrange a Plan of Equitable Partition by Lot, by means whereof a large mass of very valuable property, such as it is believed no other single individual in the colony if possessed of, will be thrown open to public competition at fair rates. A Prospectus, setting forth the particulars of the lots in course of preparation, and will be published for general information very shortly. The plan will comprise property of the value of £50,000. The Sydney property, much of it in the very heart of the city, is valued at £20,000 and upwards. The suburban property, and it is adjoining the boundary line of the city, and none of it more than six miles distant therefrom, at £10,000; and other tracts, for the most part situate in fine agricultural districts, together with stations, sheep, and cattle, at £10,000. The particulars of these very extensive properties, when divided into suitable lots, will be given in the forthcoming prospectus. The Committee for the present consists of the following gentlemen:—

RAILWAY DEMURS.

ALTHOUGH the spirit of the age is eminently enterprising, and seems on a cursory observation to be all buoyancy and triumph, there can be no doubt amongst those who are conversant with the details of its progress, that, up to a certain stage, it is opposed by difficulties whose name is Legion, and has to fight every inch of its way. The spirit we speak of is that of science applied to the practical affairs of life. This spirit is essentially innovating. Dissatisfied with things as they exist, it is ever seeking to disturb the settled habits of society by the introduction of what it believes to be valuable improvements. But society on the whole is averse to innovation; is well contented with things as they exist, and looks with jealousy or positive dislike on all new fangled schemes for its own amelioration. It is slow to believe, still slower to consent, and slower still to act, when science unfolds her discoveries, asks leave to try her experiments, and invites general co-operation in the working out of her beneficial changes. Incredulity which will not be convinced, ignorance which will not be instructed, obstinacy which will not be moved, prejudice which refuses to be propitiated, and indifference which it seems impossible to rouse—these are amongst the daily obstacles by which scientific adventure is checked, and which nothing but its own indomitable energies could effectually conquer.

Sixty years ago, an American citizen, of the name of OLIVER EVANS, satisfied himself as to the applicability of steam to land travelling. He petitioned the legislature of Pennsylvania for the exclusive right of erecting steam waggons to propel them; but the Committee to whom his petition was referred (despite his teaching, and of course refused his prayer. Three years afterwards, he laid before the public a further specimen of his matchless mechanical ingenuity, and of his unshowmanlike his drawing and his sanguine expectations. Fortune favoured him, he asked them to join in the expense and profits of his project; but, fearful of the difficulties attending it, they declined the concern. Similar applications to other parties met with the same fate; and so the precious secret which OLIVER EVANS had found out, and of which he was anxious to give the world the benefit, was thrust back into oblivion for half a century longer.

About ten years ago, when the bold scheme for crossing the Atlantic in steamvessels was nearly matured, a gentleman who then held an exalted place amongst the scientific oracles of Europe, Dr. LARDNER, roundly asserted, and staked his reputation on the truth, that the thing was physically impossible. Within a few weeks after the oracle had spoken, the thing was done.

A few years earlier, similar obstacles were thrown in the way of those enterprising men of Liverpool who were bent on opening a locomotive communication by steam between their seaport and the manufactories of Manchester. Their first application to the House of Commons for a Bill was negatived in Committee by a casting vote of the Chairman, the Committee being of opinion that "from considerations of kindness to the promoters of so wild and impracticable a scheme, the bill ought to be rejected." A Civil Engineer, Mr. FRANCIS GILES, was adduced as a witness, as to the impracticability of carrying the proposed railway over that huge bog, Chat Moss; and his evidence, says the historian, "presents an amusing instance of incautious judgment." He declared that a railway certainly could not be made over that place without going to the bottom of the Moss, a depth of 33 or 34 feet; that no carriage could stand on the Moss short of the bottom; that the locomotive would not get the parties through it. One of the learned gentlemen who examined this witness, waxing facetious on the madness of the scheme, asked Mr. GILES what it would cost to fill up the Moss with diamonds. The writer from whose narrative we quote, adds this brief but cutting remark:—"What Mr. GILES thus declared to be impracticable, has since been accomplished; and the expense, so far from approaching to £200,000, has not exceeded £30,000!"

And when the bill was at last carried in the House of Commons, it was only by a majority of 47, there being 88 ayes against 41 noes. The financial fears caused by this inveterate opposition to the most magnificent improvement of the age we live in was immense, the expense of the Parliamentary proceedings having amounted to nearly £70,000.

It would have been passing strange had the railway promoters in this colony found in New South Wales an exception from the ordinary experience of scientific adventure. Had the colonists unanimously come forward with the best support they could afford to that novel undertaking—or even had they unanimously turned upon it with a favourable eye, the passive majority leaving the active minority to pursue the even tenor of their way, without opposition or intentional discouragement of any kind—our friends at 'other side the globe might have put down the fact as a fresh proof that in Australia the order of nature is inverted upside down. But no such anomaly has shown itself. The people of New South Wales turn out to be just as human, in regard to prejudice and incredulity, as their fellow mortals in Liverpool and Pennsylvania. The energetic few have to deal with the apathetic many. The courageous are confronted by the timid—the hopeful by the dolorous—the generous by the sordid—the patriotic by the selfish.

Three full years has this noble movement now been going on; and in spite of all the chills and checks it has had to bear, it has gone on well. Difficulty after difficulty has been surmounted; objection after objection has been refuted; cavil after cavil has been put down. At the outset, the desirableness of colonial railways was admitted on all hands; but it was thought enough in the first place, that population being too small, and the traffic too inconsiderable. Well, committees of enquiry are set to work; and they find out, by indubitable evidence, that, assuming the absence of any formidable engineering difficulties, and other unusual causes of expense, the traffic already carried on, along our great southern and western thoroughfares, would be quite sufficient to give remunerative employment. This being granted, it was again objected that the cost would be enormously beyond what the resources of the colony could meet. Well, a survey is instituted, and it is found that the cost would be more moderate than the most sanguine estimates had at first assumed. This established, it was next urged, and urged most vehemently in many quarters, that there were not labourers enough in the colony to carry out so gigantic a work. Well, the very fact of the act of trying to show that this objection had been made too much of, the floodgates of immigration were suddenly thrown open, and labour began to pour in in rapid and augmenting streams. No sooner had this last bugbear been got rid of, than up sprang a clamour for a Government guarantee, so that sure might be made doubly sure. The guarantee is given. It is given for ten years; and we ask for twenty-five. It is given for twenty-five years; and we ask for perpetuity. And if it be given for perpetuity, there will still remain one more bugbear behind which we few persons are now holding back. The guarantee, they plead, is promised by only one of the two parties whose consent is necessary to its becoming law. The Executive have assented; but then their assent is contingent upon the concurrence of the Legislative Council; and that concurrence, possibly, may not be forthcoming.

Possibly, we grant. But in granting thus much, we are granting the possibility of the Council's being utterly unfit for the exercise of its powers and the performance of its duties. If they, the representatives of the people, were to set their veto against the liberal concession of the Executive, on a question so vital to the interests of the community, they would represent themselves in a light, in which, we trust, they would not wish to be seen. Nor, we hope, will they, by doing any thing of the kind, compel the reflection amongst us, that such a thing is known that at least a decided majority are prepared to go along with Government in giving every reasonable encouragement to the Railway Company. The official members will of course vote with the Government to a man; whilst we cannot for a moment suppose that the nominee members will throw themselves into a factious opposition. The concurrence of the Council, then, may be regarded as a moral certainty.

Thus, the difficulties and objections and supposed difficulties in the way of this splendid work are brought to the test of calm consideration, the plainer does it become there is nothing in them.

DR. LANG'S EMIGRATION.

The Emigration Papers which we have just finished inspecting do not contain any information respecting the emigration which has commenced at the instance of the Rev. Dr. LANG. The Doctor has marched and countermarched like a perturbed spirit through the island of Great Britain, in the interest of his scheme, visible and confident in talk, and bearing the respectable character of a member of the Legislative Council of New South Wales, and the still more impressive one of a Minister of Religion; he has succeeded, if not in setting a-going any of his joint-stock colonization speculations, at least awakening an unusual spirit of private enterprise, and evoking a considerable unassisted emigration to that fine part of the colony generally geographically and officially known as Moreton Bay, but which (in consequence of Cook never having seen it) he chooses to call Cooksbrook. In an extract from the Moreton Bay Courier, reprinted in the Herald of 9th instant, our readers will have perused an account of the arrival of the Portitude at Moreton Bay with unassisted emigrants, and of the total want of any previous intimation or arrangement for their reception. The wife DOCROE wrote books, and scribbled letters, and talked big at public meetings, but could not spare a moment from May to September to signify to any body at Brisbane that such a ship was fitting out, was filling up, was ready to sail. It never costs the DOCROE a thought what they are to do immediately on arrival. No doubt when the Doctor's bona fide emigrants will be made to have land surveyed, and after the land has been surveyed, it will be advertised for sale, and after it has been not less than one and not longer than three months advertised for sale, it may be bought, provided nobody else wants it; and after it has actually been bought, Dr. LANG's emigrants may be set to work erecting houses, digging wells, and clearing and fencing paddocks for cultivation, and as soon as all these operations are accomplished, they may commence the cultivation of cotton. The DOCROE sends them out to grow cotton, and there is nothing to hinder them to do it after a time. But while the grass is growing the steed may starve. What are they to do in the mean time? Go to service no doubt, and plenty of that is to be got. But we think that they needed not, in such case, go to the trouble of condemning to hire service—they needed not to have been so fastidious as to refuse the Government assistance offered to all eligible emigrants. It was remarkably unwise, first because of the additional expense to themselves, secondly, because of the less sufficient sanitary precautions for the voyage; and, thirdly, because it deprives them of all claim on the Colonial Government on arrival.

But the Rev. Dr. LANG is unlike everybody else, and makes rules for himself. He has his own surgeon and catechist as well as clergymen, catechists, and teachers, and he has his own surveyor, who is to select his own land at his own price, and in his own name, in defiance of that most intractable and odious measure the Land Sales Act. He, he has his own claim on the Government for the passage moneys of these emigrants, although, so far as can be seen, he has entirely passed by the Land and Emigration Commissioners, to whom the duty of admitting as eligible all emigrants to this colony, and administering the funds set apart for their introduction, has been exclusively entrusted. These arrangements are nothing to the DOCROE. He sees only that his importance, and the prosperity of the colony, will be promoted by sending out Presbyterians to grow cotton in facua a non lucendo; Cooksland. Cotton, Presbyterianism, and Laughin, are the summa bona, and so he casts the bread of hundreds upon the waters on the chance that he will find it after many days.

Good may come out of this speculation—for a pure speculation it is—but no thanks to Dr. LANG for his neglect of every lesser-like precaution. "Jonas DONGLAS LANG, D.D., A.M., Senior Minister of the Presbyterian Church, and Member of the Legislative Council of New South Wales, Honorary Vice President of the African Institute of France, and Honorary Member of the Literary Institute of Olinda, in the Brazils," could only contemplate the most magnificent results by which Georgia, Virginia, and Carolina were to be superseded, and Cooksland and its baptizer immortalised. He could not condescend to such petty items as housing and feeding his flock.

By the ship which brought out the emigrants, it appears that despatches have reached the colonies in which Dr. LANG was saddled with the onus of taking care of the emigrants until they should be in a way to take care of themselves, and in which Government have been instructed by the DOCROE as to his plans, all about his selections and his surveys, and his pecuniary claims on the Colonial Land Fund. We fear the difficulties and dire delays of office will stand much in the way of the success of his schemes—calculations we cannot call them. We fear the DOCROE has forgotten, if he ever knew, the canny Scotch maxim, "Never to reach out your arm farther than you can well draw it to again."

CHARGE OF RAPE.—Two prisoners, named Bosworth and Ullock, were yesterday presented by Mr. Inspector Shipley for breach of the 22nd clause of the 9th Geo., inasmuch as they had in their possession a bullock, the property of the Australian Agricultural Company, which they had killed and cut up, and had in their possession a quantity of the meat, knowing it to be the property of the Company. The prisoners were remanded for further evidence.

ASSIZE INTELLIGENCE.

GOULBURN CIRCUIT COURT.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 5.

BEFORE HIS HONOR MR. JUSTICE MANNING.

RAPE.

John Swift was indicted for having on the 14th day of January last, at Gundaroo, did rape upon one Helen O'Brien, an infant, of the age of six years, feloniously made an assault, and unlawfully carnally known and abused the said Ellen.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was undefended.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL conducted the prosecution, and in opening the case to the Jury, stated that the prisoner was charged with an offence which was still capital in this colony; but that, if after hearing the testimony of the medical man, the Jury should be of opinion that the capital offence had not been completed, it was competent for them under the 2nd section of the 11th Vict., No. 30, to find the prisoner guilty of an assault with intent. It mattered not to him whether the child consented or not. A child of the tender age of the prosecutrix, in cases of this kind, was not allowed a consent at all. The learned Attorney-General then gave a brief history of the case, as detailed in evidence.

At this stage of the proceedings His Honor applied Mr. Holroyd to watch the case for the prisoner, as he was indicted capitally. To His Honor's application Mr. Holroyd consented.

It appeared from the evidence, that on Thursday, the 11th of January, the prisoner went to the hut of Henry O'Brien, the child's father, situated from Gundaroo about a quarter of a mile. The prisoner was evicted, and represented that he was suffering from hunger; Orion gave him a shilling, to give him some food, and to take care of him for a day or two. On the evening of the following day, when O'Brien returned from his work, prisoner was still lying sinner and continued to be so, when O'Brien went to bed. A man named Ditchfield, who was employed by O'Brien, and was accustomed to sleep in the hut, was awakened by the heat of the weather, been sleeping under a dray in the yard; about 2 A.M. on the morning of Friday, the 12th, he was awakened by the dog barking, and hearing screams, he got up, and almost immediately after saw the child, Ellen O'Brien, running from the direction of a creek about 100 yards off; she was crying and appeared much frightened; at this time the father of the child, being awoke by the noise, had come out of the hut, and had encountered the child. He gave the child into the care of Ditchfield, and then ran after the prisoner, who at the time was about forty yards from the house; he followed him for a quarter of a mile, and came up to him; he had a stick in his hand, and made a blow at O'Brien, saying at the same time, "You—wretch I'll knock your brains out before I take me a prisoner;" O'Brien then knocked prisoner down, and said, "You villain what made you take my daughter;" prisoner replied "I don't kill me for hunger, I can stand that, but I have not injured her;" O'Brien then conducted prisoner back to the hut, and left him in charge of Ditchfield, while he went to Gundaroo for a constable; prisoner when caught by O'Brien had only a shirt, which afterwards proved to belong to Ditchfield; on the arrival of the constable, prisoner was taken to the lock-up at Gundaroo; the child was of too tender age to be examined; it was supposed that she had been violated, but from her being by the prisoner, and upon examination she was much injured, though the surgeon, Dr. Large, who attended her, was unable to swear positively whether the capital offence had been committed; O'Brien considered that the prisoner was guilty of the offence.

The prisoner in his defence protested that he was innocent. That the shirt was not Ditchfield's but his own, and accounted for the stains of blood on it by saying that he was assisting his master to kill a bullock the day before he went to O'Brien's.

Mr. Holroyd, in summing up, told the Jury that the evidence might go to show that the man was eccentric or of weak intellect; but yet so weak as to be incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong. If they thought he was not able to distinguish between right and wrong, they could not say that it was not guilty, and he would be detained till the pleasure of the Crown should be known. There was no doubt that the child was injured in some one. There was evidence of the child screaming, of her running frightened to the hut, of her showing marks of violence upon her person, of the man being out with her, of a shirt on, and of admissions made by him to O'Brien, the father. His Honor advised the Jury to place little reliance on the marks of blood on the shirt, and he concluded by telling them he had no hesitation in advising them, if they thought the man guilty, to find him guilty of the lesser offence, since there was no direct proof to convict him of the capital charge.

The Jury retired for a few minutes, and on returning into Court found the prisoner guilty of an assault with intent unlawfully carnally to know and abuse Ellen O'Brien.

At a subsequent part of the day, his Honor having ascertained from Dr. Waugh, the medical attendant of the Gaol at Goulburn, that the prisoner was a fit subject for a pardon, and that he was so worked on the roads or other public works of the colony for the period of five years, the first two years in irons.

ASSAULT WITH INTENT.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL stated to the Court that as the last assizes an information was put upon the file against Thomas Dwyer for an attempt to commit a rape on Bridget Tapps; as the prosecutrix did not attend, Dwyer then was discharged upon his own recognizances to appear at the present assizes, and he had done so. Bridget Tapps, the prosecutrix, was not here, though she had been subpoenaed, and he therefore prayed that he might be set upon his own, to lay the foundation for an application for an attachment against her.

SENTENCE.

James Mortimer was indicted for having, on the 15th day of November, 1848, at Wagga Wagga, feloniously stolen one saddle and one bridle, of the goods and chattels of one William King.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was undefended.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL conducted the prosecution, and stated in opening, that this case should have been sent for trial at the Quarter Sessions instead of the assizes, as it was one of simple larceny.

The case against the prisoner was this: On the 15th day of November, the 15th mentioned in the information, the prosecutor stopped at a blacksmith's shop at Wagga Wagga, by the name of Benjamin Franklin, and a younger storm coming on, he placed his dray under Franklin's shed, and at that time the saddle and bridle were on the dray. On the following morning the prosecutor took his dray to Green's, the constable, and whilst there he missed these articles. He then went back to Franklin's, in consequence of a prisoner having spent the night at Franklin's, suspicion of the theft fell upon him. Franklin followed him, and the dwelling thirteen or fourteen miles, overtook him, and found the prosecutor's saddle and bridle on the prisoner's dray. It was proved that the bridle had not been concealed, and when asked by King where he had got it, he said he had found it on the road. When the prosecutor was called upon to identify the saddle and bridle, he identified the former, but said he knew nothing of the latter. Green, the Chief Constable of Wagga Wagga, was called upon by the Attorney-General, to explain the circumstances, when he stated that on his way to the Assizes he was using the prosecutor's bridle, and it was exchanged at Gundaroo for the bridle now produced. This piece of evidence was strongly embodied upon by the learned Attorney-General, who told the constable it was most improper to use any thing which was likely to be put in evidence in larceny.

The prisoner in his defence persisted in his story; that he had found the saddle and bridle.

His Honor, in summing up, stated that he concluded "the regret expressed by the Attorney-General, that such a trifling case should have been sent up, was the cause of the Assizes instead of the Quarter Sessions." The prisoner was a fit subject for a pardon, and was worked on the roads or other public works of the colony for the period of five years, the first two years in irons.

ASSAULT WITH INTENT.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL stated to the Court that as the last assizes an information was put upon the file against Thomas Dwyer for an attempt to commit a rape on Bridget Tapps; as the prosecutrix did not attend, Dwyer then was discharged upon his own recognizances to appear at the present assizes, and he had done so. Bridget Tapps, the prosecutrix, was not here, though she had been subpoenaed, and he therefore prayed that he might be set upon his own, to lay the foundation for an application for an attachment against her.

SENTENCE.

James Mortimer was indicted for having, on the 15th day of November, 1848, at Wagga Wagga, feloniously stolen one saddle and one bridle, of the goods and chattels of one William King.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was undefended.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL conducted the prosecution, and stated in opening, that this case should have been sent for trial at the Quarter Sessions instead of the assizes, as it was one of simple larceny.

The case against the prisoner was this: On the 15th day of November, the 15th mentioned in the information, the prosecutor stopped at a blacksmith's shop at Wagga Wagga, by the name of Benjamin Franklin, and a younger storm coming on, he placed his dray under Franklin's shed, and at that time the saddle and bridle were on the dray. On the following morning the prosecutor took his dray to Green's, the constable, and whilst there he missed these articles. He then went back to Franklin's, in consequence of a prisoner having spent the night at Franklin's, suspicion of the theft fell upon him. Franklin followed him, and the dwelling thirteen or fourteen miles, overtook him, and found the prosecutor's saddle and bridle on the prisoner's dray. It was proved that the bridle had not been concealed, and when asked by King where he had got it, he said he had found it on the road. When the prosecutor was called upon to identify the saddle and bridle, he identified the former, but said he knew nothing of the latter. Green, the Chief Constable of Wagga Wagga, was called upon by the Attorney-General, to explain the circumstances, when he stated that on his way to the Assizes he was using the prosecutor's bridle, and it was exchanged at Gundaroo for the bridle now produced. This piece of evidence was strongly embodied upon by the learned Attorney-General, who told the constable it was most improper to use any thing which was likely to be put in evidence in larceny.

The prisoner in his defence persisted in his story; that he had found the saddle and bridle.

His Honor, in summing up, stated that he concluded "the regret expressed by the Attorney-General, that such a trifling case should have been sent up, was the cause of the Assizes instead of the Quarter Sessions." The prisoner was a fit subject for a pardon, and was worked on the roads or other public works of the colony for the period of five years, the first two years in irons.

Wagga Wagga to Goulburn, a distance of upwards of two hundred miles.

BAILMENT.

James Moore was indicted for having, on the 27th day of November, 1848, at Yass, feloniously stolen one saddle and one cloak, the goods and chattels of Moses Moore.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was undefended.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL conducted the prosecution, and stated to the Jury that this was another larceny case, and should have been sent also for trial to the Court of Quarter Sessions. As the witnesses were present he thought it right that the case should be tried at the assizes.

The prosecutor is an innkeeper at Yass, and on the afternoon of the 27th of November last, prisoner was employed at the house of the prosecutor. The saddle, with the coat strapped in front, was seen in the stable at 5 P.M. About nine o'clock the same evening, Hannah Nott, a neighbour little girl, was at the house of the prosecutor, saw the prisoner come in the direction from the stable, carrying on his back the articles mentioned in the information. The door of the stable was locked, and the prisoner must have effected an entrance through a window which was open. The property was not missed until the following morning, when Hannah Nott mentioned what she had seen on the previous evening. The prisoner was in custody, and was confronted with the girl, who having ascertained that he had been shepherding on the plains a mile from Yass, went to the hut, and there the coat was stripped up in bedding, which he identified as his own. The saddle was never found.

The prisoner said nothing in his defence.

His Honor summed up, and the jury, after a short absence from Court, found the prisoner guilty, and his Honor sentenced him to be worked in irons on the roads or other public works of the colony for the period of one year.

INDECENT ASSAULT.

Hartley Smith was indicted for having, on the 19th day of January, 1849, at Goulburn, in and upon one Bridget Burrow, an infant of the age of three years, did make an indecent assault, and for having then and there unlawfully and indecently assaulted the said Bridget Burrow.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and was undefended.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL conducted the prosecution, and stated to the Jury that the offence was a misdemeanor under the 4th section of the 11th Victoria, No. 36, an act which was recently passed by the Legislative Council of this colony, for the better protection of infant children who might fall into the hands of persons of bestially habits.

The evidence in such case was shortly as follows: On the afternoon of the 19th of January, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, according to the information, the prisoner was seen at the corner of a stockyard, near the house of the child Arrow, in Goulburn, and that he took the child up the stockyard to a recess formed by the stockyard fence and a pigsty. The child was then immediately missed, and the mother found the child in a position as left no doubt of the prisoner's intentions. The mother of the child immediately alarmed her husband and Mr. David Davis to the spot; prisoner stated that he had done no harm to the child, and offered a shilling to induce them him to go, he would give him a silver watch; prisoner was then lodged in the lockup.

The prisoner in his defence stated that he was innocent of the charge, and that illness had brought him to the stockyard.

His Honor then shortly recapitulated the evidence, and the Jury found the prisoner guilty.

Evidence was then given that the prisoner had been before convicted of a similar offence.

Mr. Holroyd, after commenting on the enormity of the crime, sentenced the prisoner to be worked in irons on the roads or other public works of the colony for the period of three years.

RED. S. HAND AND ANOTHER.

The Attorney-General stated, that in the case of Nicholas Hand and John Dunn, who were committed so far back as the 26th of August last for trial at the Quarter Sessions, it appeared that the principal witness (O'Brien) had absconded, and as there was little probability of procuring his attendance hereafter, he should move that the prisoners be liberated on their own recognizances, to appear when called upon by the Attorney-General to answer any charge that might be preferred against them.

The prisoners, having entered into the required recognizances, were then discharged.

In the estate of Robert Marsden Cartwright, an adjourned certificate meeting was held, when the same was allowed.

IN THE SAME ESTATE.—The certificate of this insolvent was suspended for twelve months on the 3rd February, 1848, and the period allowed to having elapsed, Jenner applied to the Chief Commissioner that it might now be granted him. Opposition was lodged by Lewis Alexander, who had on the previous occasion opposed the insolvent. The Chief Commissioner, however, decided that the certificate having been suspended for twelve months, there he lived and no new facts having been proved against the insolvent, it must now be granted.

THE SETTLEMENT AT OTAGO.

(From the Otago Times, December 27.)

NEW zealia ages, and the pioneers of this settlement commenced, what seemed to them then, the endless task of clearing ground for ship of commercial activity and enterprise. It was wonderful to see how, in a few years, the wilderness of wood, fine, and fern, met the eye, diversified here and there with a dismal looking hut, or a patch of land, of a dismal kind, and under discouragements which damped the ardour of some of their number, they continued progressing, and at last, instead of seeing one or two solitary houses, with a few patches of potatoes, the eye is gladdened with a goodly sprinkling of houses, some of wood, others of stone, and some of both, surrounded by fences, well fenced and cleared, and one street, at least, showing its broad track from end to end of the town, giving evidence of the progress we have made. We have two hotels—a church—a school—a wharf, small though it be. We have butchers, bakers, and stores of all descriptions. We have an Odd Fellows' Society—a Cricket Club; we have boats plying on the bay and the river, and every outward sign of commercial activity and enterprise. If we want anything at present, it is more capitalists, to aid and increase what has been already well and spiritually begun. Our population in the town alone, is nearly 600; including 18 land proprietors, 20 storekeepers, 24 carpenters, sawyers, &c., and about 100 labourers. At Port Chalmers, Anderson's Bay, the Half-way Bush, the Tait, and Waikouaiti, we have a population of about 190; including shoemakers, 3 carpenters, 3 sawyers, 1 blacksmith, 3 brewers, 1 baker, and number of about 50 in the country districts. The number of sheep in the district is 17,000, and the number of cattle 1,000. The number of acres in cultivation is 1,000, and the number of acres in pasture 15,000. The number of acres sold is 1,000, and the number of acres in pasture 15,000. The number of acres sold is 1,000, and the number of acres in pasture 15,000. The number of acres sold

GOULBURN.

FEBRUARY 6.—Circumstances requiring our presence in southern parts have prevented us from noticing passing events for a short time, that I could do for the public good. I would offer myself as a candidate for the county, but it is difficult to persuade electors without money, which I have not got; neither have I the inclinations for such a position, as required by law; nor, which is worse, have I anything except a parcel of half-used furniture and a few old clothes, which is a lottery for the manifestation of my intents and disinterested patriotism. After much consideration I am obliged to rest in the humble conclusion, that the only good that I can do, is confined to suggesting an improvement upon the partition and lottery proposals issued by that tipping petitioner, Mr. Wentworth (which anticipated paying Argyle a visit), and a deputation of three town and three country gentlemen were appointed to present the address—the time and the place to be left to His Excellency's choice, and which being ascertained, it was agreed that the country gentlemen should have a perfect understanding as to the etiquette to be observed on the occasion.

His Excellency Sir Charles Fitz Roy, accompanied by Messrs. Macleay, the Colonial Secretary, E. Deas Thompson, Esq., and attended by Mr. Fitz Roy, &c., arrived at Bowral on Saturday, 27th January, and on the following day attended Divine service, which was conducted by the Rev. W. Sowerby. His Excellency then transacted business expeditiously on Monday; not the smallest intimation being given to the deputation to be in readiness to receive His Excellency. Some of them got scent of it a few minutes before, and tried to be at the Court House in time, but with an unseemly haste, to meet the representative of our beloved Sovereign; besides the deputation, there were several other gentlemen present, who had come from a distance with the desire of paying respect to his Excellency. There did not seem to have been any previous arrangement as to who should hand the address, when Captain Rose did himself the honour of doing so; but, though a very upright and useful member of the community, his foreign accent certainly disqualified him for doing so, and he certainly would have shown a better judgment even if he had been solicited to read the address, to have requested another gentleman to have done so. The address and reply have already appeared in the columns of the Herald, therefore I omit the insertion here.

His Excellency then proceeded to the Court House, and requested Mr. W. Bowman to act as president, Mr. Captain Scarvell as vice-president, and nominating a committee, were then agreed to.

Mr. W. Walker kindly consented to act as secretary on this occasion.

Some preliminary arrangements with Mr. Coffey to supply a dinner on Thursday, the 16th, and I doubt not everything will be conducted in a style worthy the distinguished guest. I believe Mr. Cowper has signified his intention of meeting his constituents at the Bowral Inn, Bowral, on the 16th, at which the dinner is to take place, and I feel very confident there will be a large attendance of the freeholders of the county. After all the preliminary proceedings had been settled,

Mr. Bowman acknowledged the vote of thanks for his conduct in the chair, in very grateful and suitable terms, and said that from day's experience convinced him more of the better feeling existing among the community, which he nothing doubted had been more tumultuous than the present meeting.

BATHURST.

FEBRUARY.—But little variation in prices since our last: new wheat, good samples from 7s. to 7s. 6d. per bushel; the millers have reduced the price of flour to £10 fine, and £8 seconds, per ton of 2000 lbs. Hay, from 35s. to 40s. per ton, superior quality. Dairy produce, sorts as before. Fruit, abundant and cheap; vegetables, more plentiful, and not dear.

THE WEATHER has for several weeks past been in nearly hot, a fine season for harvest, and very bad one for grazing. We have had no rain since the 20th December, and the herbage has become parched up, and nearly damped, and unless we have rain before the end of June, we shall be certainly in danger of a famine in the shape of feed for cattle, horses, and sheep.—On Friday, the 1st instant, about sundown, a cold wind sprang up from the south-east, and continued it blow throughout the night, sometimes a perfect hurricane; a cold wind blowing from the same quarter the two following days and nights. These sudden and extreme transitions of heat to cold must have caused much sickness with old and young.

RECENTLY PARAPHRASE.—A meeting of several of the inhabitants of the district was held on Monday, the 6th instant, at the Bathurst Hotel, for the purpose of taking into consideration the necessity of calling a public meeting on this important subject, when it was agreed to that the Police Magistrate should be requested to call a meeting for the purpose, a requisition was agreed to, and within a few hours upwards of thirty signatures attached to it. No day has yet been named for holding it, but it is the general opinion it will take place on Tuesday, the 20th instant, at the Bathurst Hotel.

ASSIZES.—Calendar of prisoners for trial at the Assizes to be held here on Thursday, the 22nd instant:—William John Henry, highway robbery with violence; James Henry of Yackandandah, with intent to kill; Richard Curtin, John Robinson, Joseph Toplis, and George Middleton, forgery; Henry Mason, William Mason, Peter O'Brien, Edward Hilldon, and Joseph Jeffries, cattle stealing; Robert Black and William McKenzie, horse stealing; Thomas Baker, John Hartnell, and Thomas Williams, day robbery; William Gibson, slaughtering day; John Shirley and Peter Yeates, robbery with violence. Although the calendar is nineteen prisoners for trial, there are only thirteen cases; the civil cases are fixed for Monday, the 27th instant. The list of those set down for trial we will furnish by next post.

DAVID STERLING.—On Thursday, corporal Anderson, and lance-corporal Baker, of the mounted police, apprehended a man named Hay Reardon, near the Fish River, and on Sunday he was brought into town. Mr. Hill, the man, who is a ticket-of-leave holder, stated charged with stealing horses, the property of Mr. Irving. Mr. Hill, the magistrate, before the Court, and remanded for the evidence of Mr. Irving.

ROBERT STERLING.—On Friday last, a man named John Parsons came into town, and attended at the Police Office, to receive a sum of money due to him, which an execution had had been issued against his master for wages. About eight o'clock that evening he went into a public-house kept by Mr. Thomas White, Chelsea-street, and called for a pint of wine, and purchased a bottle of port wine, intending to regale with some other friends living at Sydney-street, in the upper part of the township, where he purposed taking up his lodging for the night; a short distance before he reached the house of his friend, he was met by two men, one knocked him down while the others rifled his pockets, and took the person £8 in notes, 16s. 6d. in silver, and the remaining 15s. in silver; they appropriated also other articles; Parsons, as soon as recovered from the blow and fright he had received, proceeded to the house of Mr. Chief Constable and constable Finnerty and soon on the scent, and proved good ferrets; three other the robbery they apprehended, man named James Daly, at a public house in Sydney-street; he was suspected of being concerned in the robbery, but at the hearing of the case it was proved to be an alibi, and he was discharged.

Shortly after, a man named Peter Hay, a ticket-of-leave holder, was apprehended by Constable Finnerty, on a charge of stealing a horse, the property of Mr. Hill, of Hawick-street. The chief constable gave chase after a third man, John Hay, who had fled on being pursued, ran into a house at the rear of Mr. White's inn, and on the next of pleasing something near Mr. Hay, the chief constable was sent to the house, and on searching, found 16s. 6d. in silver. Shirley admitted was part of the money taken from Parsons on search; Hay, Shirley, a pocknife was found, on Hay's chisel, Parsons recognised to be his, and Finnerty, Hay, Shirley, and Hay, were committed for trial, and the remainder of the property, at 12 dollars, Kew's, &c., entirely particulars, by the Bathurst Chief Constable, WILLIAM MACKAY.

PUBLIC GOOD.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMAN,—I have lain awake the whole of the last two nights, endeavouring to find out what I could do for the public good. I would offer myself as a candidate for the county, but it is difficult to persuade electors without money, which I have not got; neither have I the inclinations for such a position, as required by law; nor, which is worse, have I anything except a parcel of half-used furniture and a few old clothes, which is a lottery for the manifestation of my intents and disinterested patriotism. MISCELLANEOUS EXTRACTS.

JUVENILE PAUPER EMIGRATION.

(From the Morning Chronicle, September 30.)

YESTERDAY, at a very fully attended meeting of the board of directors and guardians of the poor of St. Marylebone, held in the board-room of the workhouse, New-road; Mr. W. Low in the chair.

Mr. Thomas, the Secretary, laid before the board the following communication from the Colonial Land and Emigration Commissioners, on the subject of the proposed determination of the Government to send out juvenile paupers as emigrants:—

Colonial Land and Emigration Office,
Park-street, Westminster, Sept. 28, 1844.

SIR—The Colonial Land and Emigration Commissioners have the honour to transmit to the guardians of the parishes on the subject of the letter addressed to you, on the 14th instant, under the Right Hon. Sir Robert Peel's direction, to request that the entry and questions of the poor of the parishes of Bermondsey, Bermondsey, and Rotherhithe, Southwark, was with a list of the poor women whom they may be desirous of subscribing to be conducted to emigration to Australia, under the arrangements contained in the enclosed extract, and that the entry of the commissioners will despatch an officer of this board to inspect the applicants and ascertain their respectability.

The commissioners would suggest that a memorandum is for messages under the present arrangements might be advisable if the board of guardians would state their preference to those who have had their parents.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
C. FLOOD, Secretary.

C. Flood, Esq., Vestry Clerk, St. Marylebone.

Mr. Artaud moved that this communication be entered on the minutes, and that the secretary be requested to supply the necessary list to the Land and Emigration Commissioners.

Mr. Solon expressed his astonishment that the great enemy to the emigration of females, which was to have the aid of the government, should divinized down to the sending out of a few girls. He was sorry that the government should the colony of South Australia was so much in want of labourers of every description, that, while it was proposed to send out a few girls to obtain it, and the government having restricted the juvenile pauper emigration to the taking out of a few girls, it would appear as if the colony had got labour sufficient. Either one of two things must be certain; namely, either that the colony of the Colonial Office must know nothing at all about what the wants of the colony of South Australia were, or the information which that board and the vestry of Marylebone had received must be erroneous. A short time since they had before them a member of the Legislative Council that certainly stated to them, that they would had declared that the merchants and colonists from the highest to the lowest, were so much in want of labourers, that they would be willing to pay half, or even two-thirds of the expense of sending out labourers; and although this was the case, the Government had taken very little emigration to a few girls. He was afraid that altogether there had been a great deal of deception in this matter, and he wished to know where the fault lay, and whether it was a restrictive rule laid down by the Government.

Mr. Walpole Eyre thought the proceedings taken in the matter were in reality very sickly, highly proper on the part of the Government.

Mr. Solon considered that the board ought to congratulate themselves on the assistance the Government were disposed to render, however small, as it relieved the guardians of a great amount of responsibility. (Hear, hear.) Not only would the taking out of these young women prove a great relief to the board and the parish, but it at the same time would prove of the highest benefit to the poor girls themselves. From Government of Lord Grey, he expected that they would be taken under the protection of the Government, who would take care on their arrival in the colony, that they were placed in suitable employment, and in the hands of respectable parties. Although the Government had restricted the number to present to females, there was, he thought, no doubt but it would be extended to males.

Mr. Artaud said the selections made were made from the list of the persons of emigration. They consisted of young girls, of sixteen and upwards, who had not yet been allowed to run loose from the parish, and had not yet become make-under proper care, excellent members of society. (Hear.)

Mr. Solon thought the committee should make selections from these girls, and also from the youths at the stone-yard from time to time, and wished to have the list of the Government recommendation for emigration, so that when the Government were prepared to take them out, they might be in readiness. (Hear, hear.)

After some further discussion, the resolution was put and carried unanimously, and the board broke up.*

EXTRACTS FROM THE SPEECH OF THE HON. DANIEL WEBSTER.

(To the Whigs of Merrifield, Massachusetts, GIVING HIS VIEWS ON THE TWEEN PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES.

THE HON. Daniel Webster enjoys so high a reputation, both in Europe and America, that the following statement of his views as to the approaching presidential election, as to the merits of General Taylor, Mr. Van Marin Buren, and General Cass, the three candidates treated in the field, will be read with interest. He said—

There are three candidates for the Presidency presented to the choice of the American people. General Taylor is the Whig candidate standing on the nomination of the Whig National Convention. General Cass is the candidate of the opposing, and now dominant, party in this country; and the third candidate is presented in the person of Mr. Van Buren, by a convention of his fellow-citizens at Buffalo, which object, or whose main object, it appears it was, it contained 16 out of those considered the ablest Whigs in the Union. I, for the prevention of the further extension of slavery, on objectionable grounds, and I gentlemen, entirely concur, as far as that goes. I am sorry Mr. Van Buren is a candidate; I am sorry that the Whigs of the last two nights, endeavouring to find out what I could do for the public good. I would offer myself as a candidate for the county, but it is difficult to persuade electors without money, which I have not got; neither have I the inclinations for such a position, as required by law; nor, which is worse, have I anything except a parcel of half-used furniture and a few old clothes, which is a lottery for the manifestation of my intents and disinterested patriotism. After much consideration I am obliged to rest in the humble conclusion, that the only good that I can do, is confined to suggesting an improvement upon the partition and lottery proposals issued by that tipping petitioner, Mr. Wentworth (which anticipated paying Argyle a visit), and a deputation of three town and three country gentlemen were appointed to present the address—the time and the place to be left to His Excellency's choice, and which being ascertained, it was agreed that the country gentlemen should have a perfect understanding as to the etiquette to be observed on the occasion.

His Excellency Sir Charles Fitz Roy, accompanied by Messrs. Macleay, the Colonial Secretary, E. Deas Thompson, Esq., and attended by Mr. Fitz Roy, &c., arrived at Bowral on Saturday, 27th January, and on the following day attended Divine service, which was conducted by the Rev. W. Sowerby. His Excellency then transacted business expeditiously on Monday; not the smallest intimation being given to the deputation to be in readiness to receive His Excellency. Some of them got scent of it a few minutes before, and tried to be at the Court House in time, but with an unseemly haste, to meet the representative of our beloved Sovereign; besides the deputation, there were several other gentlemen present, who had come from a distance with the desire of paying respect to his Excellency. There did not seem to have been any previous arrangement as to who should hand the address, when Captain Rose did himself the honour of doing so; but, though a very upright and useful member of the community, his foreign accent certainly disqualified him for doing so, and he certainly would have shown a better judgment even if he had been solicited to read the address, to have requested another gentleman to have done so. The address and reply have already appeared in the columns of the Herald, therefore I omit the insertion here.

His Excellency then proceeded to the Court House, and requested Mr. W. Bowman to act as president, Mr. Captain Scarvell as vice-president, and nominating a committee, were then agreed to.

Mr. W. Walker kindly consented to act as secretary on this occasion.

Some preliminary arrangements with Mr. Coffey to supply a dinner on Thursday, the 16th, and I doubt not everything will be conducted in a style worthy the distinguished guest. I believe Mr. Cowper has signified his intention of meeting his constituents at the Bowral Inn, Bowral, on the 16th, at which the dinner is to take place, and I feel very confident there will be a large attendance of the freeholders of the county. After all the preliminary proceedings had been settled,

Mr. Bowman acknowledged the vote of thanks for his conduct in the chair, in very grateful and suitable terms, and said that from day's experience convinced him more of the better feeling existing among the community, which he nothing doubted had been more tumultuous than the present meeting.

BATHURST.

FEBRUARY.—But little variation in prices since our last: new wheat, good samples from 7s. to 7s. 6d. per bushel; the millers have reduced the price of flour to £10 fine, and £8 seconds, per ton of 2000 lbs. Hay, from 35s. to 40s. per ton, superior quality. Dairy produce, sorts as before. Fruit, abundant and cheap; vegetables, more plentiful, and not dear.

THE WEATHER has for several weeks past been in nearly hot, a fine season for harvest, and very bad one for grazing. We have had no rain since the 20th December, and the herbage has become parched up, and nearly damped, and unless we have rain before the end of June, we shall be certainly in danger of a famine in the shape of feed for cattle, horses, and sheep.—On Friday, the 1st instant, about sundown, a cold wind sprang up from the south-east, and continued to blow throughout the night, sometimes a perfect hurricane; a cold wind blowing from the same quarter the two following days and nights. These sudden and extreme transitions of heat to cold must have caused much sickness with old and young.

RECENTLY PARAPHRASE.—A meeting of several of the inhabitants of the district was held on Monday, the 6th instant, at the Bathurst Hotel, for the purpose of taking into consideration the necessity of calling a public meeting on this important subject, when it was agreed to that the Police Magistrate should be requested to call a meeting for the purpose, a requisition was agreed to, and within a few hours upwards of thirty signatures attached to it. No day has yet been named for holding it, but it is the general opinion it will take place on Tuesday, the 20th instant, at the Bathurst Hotel.

ASSIZES.—Calendar of prisoners for trial at the Assizes to be held here on Thursday, the 22nd instant:—William John Henry, highway robbery with violence; James Henry of Yackandandah, with intent to kill; Richard Curtin, John Robinson, Joseph Toplis, and George Middleton, forgery; Henry Mason, William Mason, Peter O'Brien, Edward Hilldon, and Joseph Jeffries, cattle stealing; Robert Black and William McKenzie, horse stealing; Thomas Baker, John Hartnell, and Thomas Williams, day robbery; William Gibson, slaughtering day; John Shirley and Peter Yeates, robbery with violence. Although the calendar is nineteen prisoners for trial, there are only thirteen cases; the civil cases are fixed for Monday, the 27th instant. The list of those set down for trial we will furnish by next post.

DAVID STERLING.—On Thursday, corporal Anderson, and lance-corporal Baker, of the mounted police, apprehended a man named Hay Reardon, near the Fish River, and on Sunday he was brought into town. Mr. Hill, the man, who is a ticket-of-leave holder, stands charged with stealing horses, the property of Mr. Irving. Mr. Hill, the magistrate, before the Court, and remanded for the evidence of Mr. Irving.

ROBERT STERLING.—On Friday last, a man named John Parsons came into town, and attended at the Police Office, to receive a sum of money due to him, which an execution had had been issued against his master for wages. About eight o'clock that evening he went into a public-house kept by Mr. Thomas White, Chelsea-street, and called for a pint of wine, and purchased a bottle of port wine, intending to regale with some other friends living at Sydney-street, in the upper part of the township, where he purposed taking up his lodging for the night; a short distance before he reached the house of his friend, he was met by two men, one knocked him down while the others rifled his pockets, and took the person £8 in notes, 16s. 6d. in silver, and the remaining 15s. in silver; they appropriated also other articles; Parsons, as soon as recovered from the blow and fright he had received, proceeded to the house of Mr. Chief Constable and constable Finnerty, and soon on the scent, and proved good ferrets; three other the robbery they apprehended, man named James Daly, at a public house in Sydney-street; he was suspected of being concerned in the robbery, but at the hearing of the case it was proved to be an alibi, and he was discharged.

Shortly after, a man named Peter Hay, a ticket-of-leave holder, was apprehended by Constable Finnerty, on a charge of stealing a horse, the property of Mr. Hill, of Hawick-street. The chief constable gave chase after a third man, John Hay, who had fled on being pursued, ran into a house at the rear of Mr. White's inn, and on the next of pleasing something near Mr. Hay, the chief constable was sent to the house, and on searching, found 16s. 6d. in silver. Shirley admitted was part of the money taken from Parsons on search; Hay, Shirley, a pocknife was found, on Hay's chisel, Parsons recognised to be his, and Finnerty, Hay, Shirley, and Hay, were committed for trial, and the remainder of the property, at 12 dollars, Kew's, &c., entire particulars, by WILLIAM MACKAY.

Bathurst, October 8, 1844.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

BAKING POWDER,

FOR making delicious unfermented Bread, Pastry, Pie-crusts, Tea Cakes, Plum Cakes, and the preparations of Indian Corn, without yeast.

Bakers made by this method is more wholesome than that made with yeast, requires no less time and trouble in making, and sure to rise: it has an agreeable taste, keeps much longer and much lighter to the stomach.' By the old plan of baking, the yeast decomposes and destroys the sugar of the flour, converting it into Alcohol and Carbonic Acid Gas, consequently Fourteen Pounds of Flour will only make eighteen Pounds of Bread, but by this process Fourteen Pounds will make Twenty Pounds of Bread.

To Captains of Vessels, Settlers, and persons residing in the Country, this Baking Powder will prove invaluable; it kept dry it will keep good in any climate.

Prepared only by A. ARMIN, Chemist, 262, George-street, opposite the Savings' Bank, Sydney, in Packets at 6d. and 1s., and in tin cases at 2s. 6d. and 5s. each.
